Burke's Kale Burke's Kale is a variant of kale used as a savory filling for pies.

Burke's Kale is generally sold wrapped in cellophane in the refrigerated section of grocery stores. In the United States, recipes for "Burke's Kale" are often confused with recipes for "Swiss Kale", which, in fact, contains fewer ingredients than Burke's Kale. This article reviews the physiological changes that occur following acute and chronic injuries to the hard tissue of the teeth and other aspects of the initial care of dental injuries. The biomechanics of such injuries are considered with particular attention paid to the effects of traumatized tissues on surrounding noninjured tissues and the subsequent sequelae of submucosal hemorrhage. The general principles and practices of management are presented, with a specific emphasis on the safety of splinting. In Part 1 of this 2-part article, treatment options were discussed.Changes in health-related quality of life after gynaecological surgery. The health-related quality of life (HRQOL) is an important outcome measure. This study assessed the effects of gynaecological surgery on HRQOL. Patients (n=165) undergoing outpatient gynaecological surgery completed a questionnaire 3 months postoperatively. The data of 55 women who had undergone hysterectomy, 64 who had had adnexal surgery, 20 who had had laparotomy and 30 who had had laparoscopic adnexal surgery were compared with those of 155 controls (women undergoing laparotomy for non-gynaecological surgery). There was a significant deterioration in bodily pain (p 2d92ce491b
