I used to be on that server myself, but the jumping as well as the base building it enforced upon you drove me away for good. I understand that there are mappers working on that server, so that does give me hope for the future. • shamber: Noticed this one in my Clan Introduction, but I am seeing it in all communities, although their ranks are noticeably lower than before. • gamemary: I remember the days when this one was reigning supreme. It seems that it has cooled a bit lately, but there is still so much to be done and this community is completely friendly. I hope that they go back to their earlier glory. • PorePore: I never really considered this one as a hardcore league, but I have been involved with it for a while and it seems to be progressing nicely. • Info_Guru: 1cdb36666d

I'm quite new to writing VBA scripts in Excel for VBA Tools. How do I bring an Excel sheet into Visual Studio (2017) and run a VBA script? I can't find any documentation on this, or a walkthrough on how to run the script. A: Using Excel 2016 Here is an example of running the script: Afterwards, you will see the change reflected on the data tab on the right. Using Excel 2013 There is no visual studio for Excel 2013. But you can do some basic debugging from Excel itself, by pasting the script to the Visual Basic Editor within Excel. Once pasted, you will have to press F9 to run the script. When
